

ABA Joins In 'Days Of Caring'

On October 7, several members of ABA Architects joined other companies in United Way's Days of Caring, a campaign where local businesses in Tucson (and many other cities across the country) help those less fortunate through charitable works.

Among those representing ABA Architects were Kim Fernandez, Luis Sepulveda, Paul Edwards, Preston Godfrey, Emily Buttrick, and Breda Cronin. The firm's involvement stems from a longstanding commitment to charitable organizations that ABA Architects has adhered to for many years. As a board president of Greater Tucson Leadership, Ferranti thought this would be a great opportunity for the firm to reach out to others in a positive way.

Needless to say, the day's events were a resounding success all across Tucson, and ABA Architects looks forward to continue doing its part in providing others a helping hand. Please see <http://www.volunteertucson.org/default.asp> for more information.
